

What are the signs of compulsive hoarding?

- Difficulty getting rid of items
- A large amount of clutter in the office, at home, in the car, or in other spaces (i.e. storage units) that makes it difficult to use furniture or appliances or move around easily
- Losing important items like money or bills in the clutter
- Feeling overwhelmed by the volume of possessions that have ‘taken over’ the house or workspace
- Being unable to stop taking free items, such as advertising flyers or sugar packets from restaurants
- Buying things because they are a ‘bargain’ or to ‘stock up’
- Not inviting family or friends into the home due to shame or embarrassment
- Refusing to let people into the home to make repairs

Hoarding is not caused by:

- ⇒ Laziness
- ⇒ Lack of Standards
- ⇒ Lack of Responsibility
- ⇒ Lack of Intelligence

A person who hoards...

- Has unhealthy beliefs about items
- Has exaggerated emotional attachments to possessions
- Has difficulty with organization
- Has poor insight into their behavior
- May have experienced significant trauma in their lifetime
- May have inherited the disorder through family
- Often has other mental illness(es)

Important points to remember:

- There is no known cure for compulsive hoarding. A variety of interventions/ techniques are necessary for treatment.
- Compulsive hoarding is a chronic illness. It is important for family members and friends to be supportive while their loved one seeks help.
- A person who hoards will often experience a major stress reaction if their items are discarded without their consent.
- Obtain consent before discarding items.
